Sandy's ivory-coloured silk taffeta gown by Norman Callan was elegantly decorated with pearls. Peter looked equally dashing in his tuxedo from K&R Clothing.

Strictly Come Dancing's Sandy Ngema weds her dream Dane

When South Africa's much-loved television presenter Sandy Ngema met Danish businessman Peter Ehrenreich on an airplane shuttle, the chemistry was instant. This prompted Peter to immigrate to her country and, two years after meeting, they wed in the Cradle of Humankind. Classical, modern and opulent were Sandy's wishes for her wedding, and the abundance of crystals decorating the venue fulfilled this request with pizzazz. Equally flashy was her reception dress (one of three dresses worn on the day) made with a heavily beaded Elie Saab fabric.

1 Silk fabric was opulently draped from the celebration venue's ceiling, gathered together in the centre where a crystal chandelier hung. 2 The groom's cake, made up of various cheeses, paid tribute to Peter's Danish heritage. It's a tradition for Danish grooms to slice through their own cake to encourage fertility. 3 An ice sculpture of Peter's family crest had a prominent place at the wedding. 4 The Champagne-and-white-chocolate-mousse cake was covered in Swarovski-crystal brooches. 5 Sandy's teal-coloured nightclub dress by Guy Granger Couture had her dancing the night away. 6 An array of candles and an explosion of white flowers made creative use of table space, with strands of crystals dangling from the tall vases and spreading elegant light.
